Definitions

Cookies are text files that a website sends to users' terminals (browsers) that allow the site manager to recognize individual visits made by users.
Cookies, usually present in users' browsers in very large numbers and sometimes with characteristics of long temporal persistence, are used for different purposes: execution of computer authentication, monitoring of sessions, storage of information on specific configurations regarding users who access the server, etc.
While browsing a site, the user may also receive cookies on his terminal that are sent from different sites or web servers (so-called "third parties"), on which some elements may reside (such as, for example, images, maps, sounds, specific links to pages of other domains) present on the site that the user is visiting.
• Cookies: Third-party analytical cookies with non-anonymised IP, third-party profiling cookies, technical cookies, third-party analytical cookies with anonymised IP.

Data subject rights - complaint to the supervisory authority

In relation to the processing described in this Policy, as an interested party you may, under the conditions set out in the GDPR, exercise the rights established by Articles 15 to 22 of the GDPR and, in particular, the following rights:
• right of access – Article 15 GDPR: right to obtain confirmation as to whether or not personal data concerning you are being processed, and, where that is the case, to obtain access to your personal data;
• right to rectification – Article 16 GDPR: right to obtain, without undue delay, the rectification of inaccurate personal data concerning you and/or the integration of incomplete personal data;
• right to erasure (right to be forgotten) – Article 17 GDPR: right to obtain, without undue delay, the erasure of personal data concerning you. The right to erasure does not apply to the extent that processing is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation or for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims.
• right to restriction of processing – Article 18 GDPR: right to obtain restriction of processing, when: a) the data subject contests the accuracy of the personal data; b) the processing is unlawful and the data subject opposes the erasure of the personal data and requests the restriction of their use instead; c) the personal data are necessary for the data subject to ascertain, exercise or defend a right in court; d) the data subject has objected to processing pending the verification whether the legitimate grounds of the data controller override those of the data subject.

• right to data portability – Article 20 GDPR: right to receive, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format, the personal data concerning you provided to the Data Controller and the right to transmit them to another controller without hindrance, if the processing is based on consent and is carried out by automated means. Furthermore, the right to obtain that your personal data are transmitted directly from this controller to another controller if this is technically feasible;
• right to object – Article 21 GDPR: right to object, at any time, to the processing of personal data concerning you based on the condition of legitimacy of legitimate interest, including profiling, unless there are legitimate reasons for the Data Controller to continue the processing that prevail over the interests, rights and freedoms of the interested party or for the establishment, exercise or defense of a right in court.
• right not to be subjected to an automated decision-making process – Article 22 GDPR: the data subject has the right not to be subjected to a decision based solely on automated processing, including profiling, which produces legal effects concerning him or her or similarly significantly affects him or her, unless this is necessary for the conclusion or performance of a contract or you have given your consent. In any case, an automated decision-making process cannot concern your personal data and you may at any time obtain human intervention by the data controller, express your opinion and contest the decision.

- In addition to the rights described above, you may also:

• lodge a complaint with the Data Protection Authority: http://www.garanteprivacy.it;
• revoke the consent given at any time and with the same ease with which it was provided without prejudice to the lawfulness of the processing based on the consent given before the revocation.

The above rights may be exercised, towards the Data Controller, by contacting the references indicated above. The exercise of your rights as an interested party is free of charge pursuant to Article 12 GDPR. However, in the case of manifestly unfounded or excessive requests, also due to their repetitiveness, the Data Controller may charge you a reasonable fee, in light of the administrative costs incurred to manage your request or deny the satisfaction of your request. Finally, we inform you that the Data Controller may request further information necessary to confirm the identity of the interested party.
